Interest rate sensitivity

Slightly negative repricing gap – timely introduction of repricing measures

As per 30 June 2022, in CHF m

- Interest expense expected to increase moderately (FY 2022E of CHF 28m–30m vs. FY 2021 of CHF 26m)
- Overall, the net interest margin is expected to decline slightly due to shift in business mix and ongoing competition, as announced in December 2021²
- Goal to offset increased interest rates by repricing:
 - Cembra introduced timely repricing measures following the SNB policy rate change in June 2022
 - The slightly negative repricing gap will contribute to protecting the net interest margin

¹ Cembra Basel III Report 2021, p 13: The weighted average repricing maturity of receivables amounts to 1.5 years and of liabilities to 2.4 years. ² See Cembra Investor Day Presentation, 7 December 2021, page 46

| 1 Decline reflecting the lower number of employees | 6 Increase driven by leasing write-off of closed branches |
| 2 Primarily related to Operational Excellence initiatives | 7 Lower expenses following the closure of SME business in 2021, partially offset by higher costs due to operational excellence and business acceleration initiatives |
| 3 Higher marketing is largely driven by the new credit card programme | 8 Mainly driven by lower amortisation relating to the cashgate acquisition |
| 4 Decrease due to lower post-payment fees and third-party expenses for collection | 9 Decrease largely driven by CHF 2.4m lower pension employer contributions as well as capitalisation related to strategic projects |
| 5 Increase mainly resulting from communication expenses related to the new mobile app as well as a higher number of paper statements | |

 2. Disciplined M&A with strict financial and strategic criteria
 3. Distribution of excess capital (buy back/dividends)

² Implementation of CECL as of 1 Jan 2023, based on US GAAP accounting standard ASC 326, required by FASB and FINMA Accounting Ordinance, FINMA-AO, 952.024.1. See appendix page 29
